This course is part of the set of AUXOP courses and is intended for members who do not wish to teach the AUXSC&E Course. It is a demanding course with 28 hours of instruction, which includes a final written examination and a practical, on a navigation chart, examination. In addition to classroom training, several hours (3-5) are required for reading of reference material and study prior to each class. In addition to classroom training and reading there is a significant amount of plotting on a navigation chart. The final practical exam also requires plotting under the pressure of limited time. Because of the intensity of the classroom training and the quantity of plotting on a navigation chart, students must be currently proficient in navigation and plotting skills and be physically prepared to plot continuously for several hours.

I meet the following prerequisites for this class:

- I have successfully completed the AUXACN (AUXNAV) course.
